Dear Richard,

I hope this email finds you well, though I'm afraid this is quite urgent.

The Journal of Distributed Systems just sent over some critical feedback and required revisions for our 'Adaptive Assessment: A Novel Approach' paper. They've given us a very tight turnaround, which caught me a bit off guard, especially with your upcoming presentation at the Robotics World Expo Conference and the new Brain Health Foundation grant work you're diving into.

I've compiled all their comments and my initial thoughts into the attached document, "manuscript_updates.docx." It contains the specific points we need to address immediately. Could you please review it as soon as possible? We really need to get our response back to them without delay to avoid further holdup.

Let me know your thoughts on the changes, ideally by tomorrow evening.

Best regards,

William Sato
