Hi William,

Hope you're having a productive week.

I'm writing regarding our "Explainable AI: A Novel Approach" paper for the Journal of Neuroscience Research. I just received some extremely time-sensitive feedback from the editorial team, and they're pushing for an expedited re-submission. It includes several key points, particularly around the ethical implications – which I know is an area you've been deeply focused on, especially with your new AI ethics grant.

I've consolidated all their comments and my proposed responses, along with specific sections requiring your immediate input, into the attached document: "manuscript_updates.docx". It's crucial we address these quickly to avoid further delays in the review process.

Could you please review this as soon as possible? I'm aiming to incorporate your feedback and finalize our revised draft by end of day tomorrow at the latest. Your insights are absolutely essential here.

Let me know if you run into any issues opening the file.

Thanks for your prompt attention to this.

Best,

Sofia
