Hi Kenji,

Hope you're having a productive week.

I just got some urgent feedback on our 'Urban Informatics: A Novel Approach' paper from the Journal of Archaeological Informatics. Apparently, there are some significant revisions needed that impact the core arguments, and they've given us a very tight turnaround – less than 48 hours for the first pass.

I've compiled all the reviewer comments and my proposed tracked changes into the attached document, "manuscript_updates.docx". Could you please open it immediately and review everything? Your input on these changes is crucial before we send it back. I've focused on the sections we discussed earlier regarding the data modeling, which I know you've been deeply involved with, especially given the new $1M grant focusing on urban informatics.

Let's sync up as soon as you've had a chance to look. This is top priority.

Thanks, Liam
